JOHN ALVITRE

Military Officer, Educator, Physician Assistant

PROFILE

I am a retired Army Major of nearly 25 years of service with many varied experiences in leadership, education, and medicine. I have worked with various federal agencies in concert with the military. I was a university lecturer and assistant director of didactic education for a prominent Physician Assistant program. I worked in the construction field where I found a lot of joy with helping others. This is where I developed a passion for the building process which furthered my desire for trauma medicine and "rebuilding the patient." I have lived around the world and love the experience no matter the location. Something good is always happening.
